THE LATEST TECHNOLOGY IN NORTH COUNTY

Hyperbaric Medicine

The Hyperbaric Medicine and Wound Healing Center at North Coast Health Center in Encinitas specializes in advanced wound care and hyperbaric oxygen therapy. Part of the UC San Diego Health System, the center welcomes physician referrals and specializes in non-emergent outpatient adults. Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy (HBOT) is a successful adjunctive treatment for many medical conditions, and is recognized as such by the American Medical Association, Medicare and commercial insurers. The center's new 10-patient rectangular hyperbaric chamber design ensures a high level of patient care in a comfortable environment, where patients can read, watch movies or listen to music during treatment.

"The opening of our state-of-the-art hyperbaric chamber and wound center in North County's largest outpatient health center will allow us to conveniently deliver exceptional wound care to the residents of North County. The outstanding location also allows us to easily coordinate the care of our patients with other specialists."

Ian Grover, M.D.
Medical Director

Comprehensive Wound Care

If you have patients who are among the five million Americans who suffer from a lingering wound, the center's team can provide expert assistance. Patients who are seen in comprehensive wound care centers such as this are more likely to heal successfully and experience less impact on their lifestyles than those who do not receive this specialized care.
